

Recapturing childhood
and adolescence
from the toxic
influence of media

when violence becomes entertaining...

October 15-16, 2010

Doubletree by Hilton Toronto Airport

655 Dixon Road

Today's young people are becoming increasingly exposed to violence through the media. As teachers, we must ask ourselves what role we play in developing the skills students require to safely navigate our media saturated society. This two-day conference will explore a variety of violence prevention strategies and programs, many of which are highly applicable in the classroom. OTF brings together an impressive group of expert leaders in the areas of bullying prevention, violence prevention, safe schools and media literacy to share their expertise and explore the common elements of these challenges.
