

How the Porcupine Got His Spikes

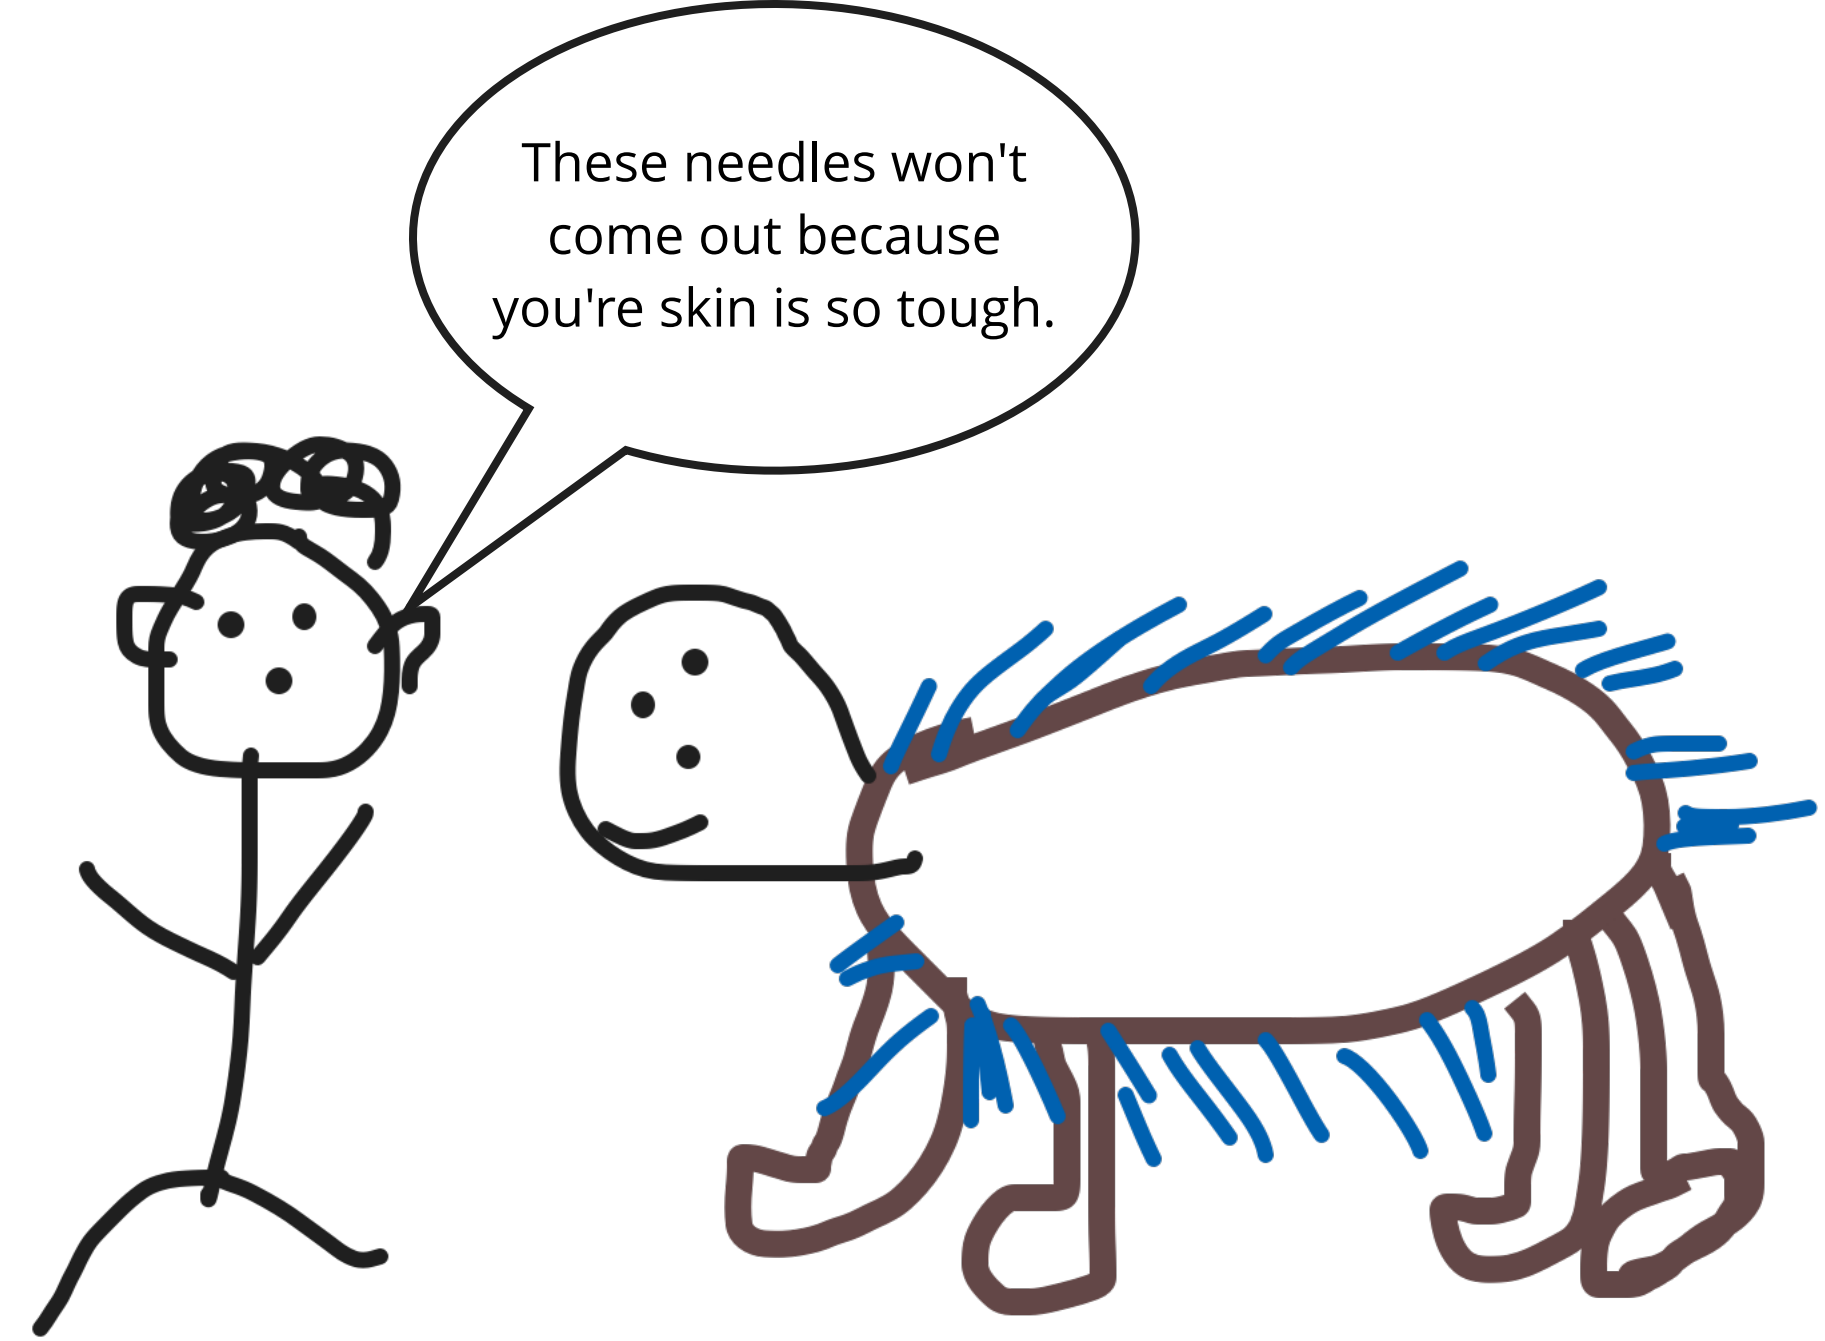

Pork was a very friendly animal and always had a smile on his face.

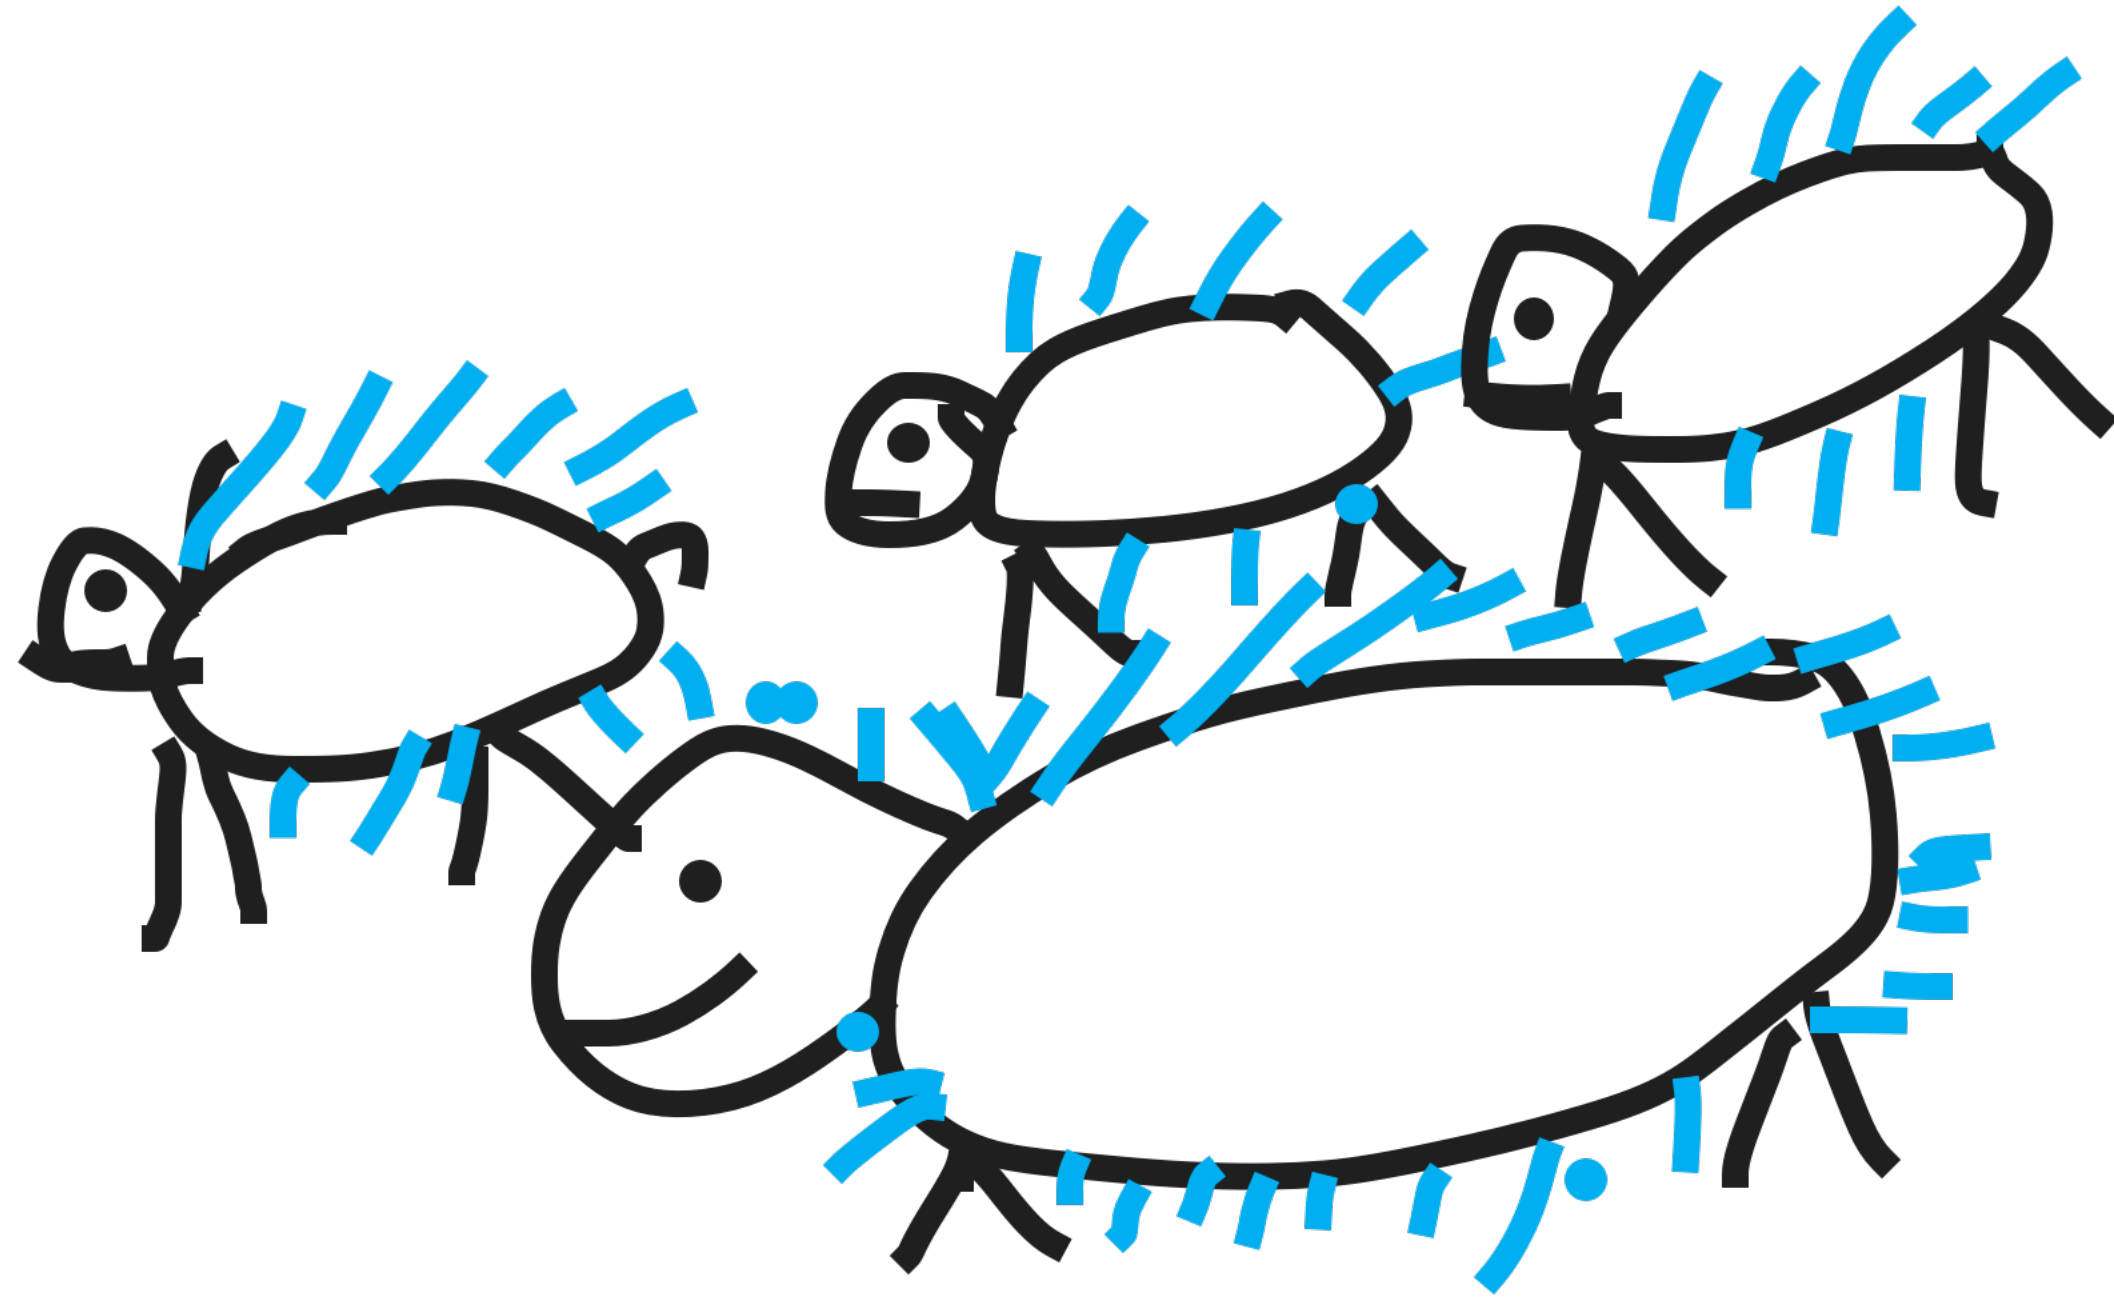

One day Pork got very sick, after days of him not being able to do anything and sleeping a lot he finally decided to go and see the doctor.

The doctor told him he had the flu and that he needed to get a needle. Pork was really scared because he had never gotten a needle before.

Once the doctor gave him the needle he couldn't get it out because his skin was so tough. After days and days of the doctor giving Pork needles, his skin was full of needles.

Pork got used to having the spikes and then they didn't bother him anymore. After Pork had kids, all the kids were born with spikes.

That is how the Porcupine got his spikes.
