- using information and communication technologies (ICT) to enhance teaching and learning,
- supporting capacity building in Kindergarten,
- using math strategies to enhance teaching and learning,
- enhancing the wellbeing of teachers and educational workers in schools, and
- providing strategies and programming which will effectively enhance the wellbeing of students.

What the TLC can do for you

- funding of $4,000 per TLC team
- involvement in ongoing self-directed learning
- collaboration with colleagues
- teamwork on a project of your determination
- release time to carry out your collaborative learning research and initiatives
- development and implementation of your project over a period of several months
- professional learning and teaching enhancements generated through your research and discussion
- sharing of your knowledge and resources with colleagues in your board and across the province
- opportunity for leadership development

Teacher Learning Co-op (TLC)

You select the team

You develop the research

You create the product

You evaluate the results

OTF appreciates that teachers should direct their own learning and have ongoing face-to-face interactions with colleagues to accomplish this.

What the TLC program offers

- support for 75 teams of two to four teachers per team:
 - 20 Kindergarten teams
 - 15 wellbeing teams
 - 20 mathematics teams
 - 20 technology teams
- mentorship program to provide ongoing assistance and expertise to the TLC teams

Getting started

- assemble a TLC team (colleagues who identify similar professional learning goals/work ethics)
- determine the specific area of focus for your project
- discuss some of the specific inquiries/professional learning goals you might like to explore
- develop a budget proposal which is balanced and practical
- zero in on just one or two for your proposal
- submit your TLC proposal at tlc@otffeo.on.ca

Teachers need release time to work together to reflect on their professional learning goals which could best enhance practice.
