

International Women's Day 2021

A message from Parker Robinson, OTF President

In recognizing International Women's Day, we at OTF are celebrating the achievements and contributions of women in publicly funded education and also in all aspects of society, here and around the world.

The hashtag, #FeministRecovery, speaks to the disproportionate impacts that the pandemic has had on women such as layoffs, lack of childcare and increased domestic violence. The role of women is rapidly changing, responsibilities increasing and inequalities becoming more pronounced.

As we move forward, let's recognize the advances we have made in gender equity but also acknowledge that there is still much to be done. We in publicly funded education can do our part to ensure that our schools and classrooms are inclusive and gender-equal.
