What We Did

We assembled a team of french teachers from different grades and worked together to come up with a list of games that french teachers can play quickly in their classrooms. We separated the list into zero prep (can be played immediately) and low prep games so that teachers could pick based on how much time they have. We spent the day working in collaboration with both an LT consultant and an FSL consultant from the school board to create a document that was easily accessible to teachers.

What We Learned

We were able to use AI to help us create tons of games using technology. Between us we were also able to create a long list of games we use in our classroom on a regular basis. We were so excited to have this list of new games that we didn't know existed (likely due to them being made up by teachers).

How We Shared Our Learning With Others

We created a shared google doc and although it is still a working document our hope is that by September it will be able to be shared with all french teachers in our board through our FSL page on the school boards website for teachers.

Any Next Steps We Have To Continue Our Learning

We will continue to add to this document any time we have new ideas for games. It is a working document. Once it is shared with all fsl staff at our board, they may have new ideas to contribute to it as well.
